UA 126/05 Fear for safety

BOLIVIA Silvestre Saisari Cruz (m), President of the Movimiento Sin Tierra de Santa Cruz (MST-SC)

Silvestre Saisari Cruz, who heads an organization that represents landless peasants in Santa Cruz Department, was attacked on 9 May by a group of men allegedly linked to a local landowner, after a press conference at which he apparently criticised the actions of the landowner in a land dispute. Amnesty International believes that his life is in danger.

Silvestre Saisari is the President of the Movimiento Sin Tierra de Santa Cruz (MST-SC), the Landless Movement of Santa Cruz. The MST-SC represents some 400 landless families who have occupied land in Obispo Santiestevan Province, Santa Cruz Department, since August 2004, forming a community they have named Pueblos Unidos.

He called the 9 May press conference in the city of Santa Cruz to tell journalists about an alleged violent attack on the community on 7 May, by a large group of men linked to the landowner. The attackers allegedly burned the community's recently harvested crops of rice and pineapples. People living in the community allegedly caught 65 of the attackers and held them hostage. The police have surrounded Pueblos Unidos, and the community are facing eviction. All the hostages were released after a few days.

Silvestre Saisari was attacked as he left the press conference, in the main square of Santa Cruz, and was beaten and kicked. Police intervened to stop the attack, which was apparently filmed by journalists.

His attackers took Silvestre Saisari's bag, and his mobile phone, which has allegedly been used to make threatening phone calls to MST-SC members. Documents that were in the bag were allegedly shown during an interview with the landowner on the nationwide Red 1 de Bolivia TV station the following day.
