Further information on UA 76/00 (AFR 12/04/00, 31 March 2000) - Unfair trial

ANGOLA Rafael Marques (freelance journalist)

And new name: Aguiar dos Santos (director of weekly newspaper "Agora")

On 31 March 2000 Rafael Marques was convicted of "defamation of the President" and sentenced to a six month prison term and a fine of between about US$ 8,000 to 16,000.

Amnesty International has received confirmation that his co-defendants, the director of the weekly newspaper Agora, Aguiar dos Santos, and the chief editor, António José Freitas, were tried at the same time. Aguiar dos Santos was also convicted of "defamation of the President" and sentenced to two months in prison and a fine of about $US 6,000. António José Freitas was acquitted.

Rafael Marques and Aguiar dos Santos have said they will appeal to the Supreme Court against their convictions and sentences. Both are free at present pending their appeals.

FURTHER RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send faxes/express/airmail letters in Portuguese or in your own language:

- expressing concern that Rafael Marques and Aguiar dos Santos have been sentenced to prison terms solely for exercising their right to freedom of expression;
- expressing concern that their trial did not conform to international standards for fair trial, or with Angolan law, that it appears the court was neither independent nor impartial and that their trial were conducted in secrecy behind closed doors;
- expressing concern that the charges against both men appear to be politically motivated, intended to silence criticism of government policy;
- pointing out that, if imprisoned, you would consider both men to be prisoners of conscience.
