Further information on UA 254/99 (AFR 23/07/99, 28 September, and follow-up AFR 23/08/99, 18 October) - Unfair trials / Prisoners of Conscience

DJIBOUTI Ali Meidal Wais, journalist
 Daher Ahmed Farah, journalist, opposition leader Moussa Ahmed Idriss, journalist, opposition leader and member of parliament

On 20 October 1999 a court of appeal upheld the convictions of Ali Meidal Wais and Daher Ahmed Farah for 'spreading false news' (diffusion de fausses nouvelles) and sentenced both men to six months' imprisonment. The six-month suspension of the two newspapers for which they work remains in force, meaning that there is no opposition newspaper currently being published in Djibouti.

The two men had initially been sentenced on 2 September to prison terms of eight months and one year respectively and each fined one million Djibouti francs after an unfair trial at which they were refused legal representation of their choice. A lawyer from Avocats sans frontières, Lawyers without borders, was allowed to represent them at the appeal hearing.

Their convictions followed articles which appeared in Le Temps, the Times, and Le Renouveau, The Renewal, about an explosion which destroyed an army helicopter. Ali Meidal Wais is a co-director of Le Temps and Daher Ahmed Farah, the president of the opposition Parti du renouveau démocratique (PRD), Party of Democratic Renewal, is the editor-in-chief of Le Renouveau, the journal of the PRD.

A third journalist, Moussa Ahmed Idriss, also a co-director of Le Temps, remains in prison having been found guilty of violently resisting arrest after an unfair trial on 6 October (see AFR 23/08/99). Amnesty International is calling for him and the 19 others convicted on the same charge to be immediately retried in conformity with international standards for fair trial. Further charges of 'spreading false news' are also outstanding against Moussa Ahmed Idriss, but no date has yet been set for the trial.

Amnesty International considers Ali Meidal Wais and Daher Ahmed Farah to be prisoners of conscience, convicted after an unfair trial and imprisoned contrary to international standards for the freedom of the press. Amnesty International would also consider Moussa Ahmed Idriss to be a prisoner of conscience if he is convicted on charges of 'spreading false news'.

FURTHER RECOMMENDED ACTION: Please send telegrams/telexes/faxes/express/airmail letters in French, English or in your own language:

- expressing your concern at the sentencing on 20 October of Daher Ahmed Farah and Ali Meidal Wais to six months' imprisonment for exercising their right to freedom of expression;
- stating your view that their imprisonment violates international standards on the freedom of the press;

- expressing concern that Ali Meidal Wais and Daher Ahmed Farah did not receive a fair trial, particularly as they were prevented from having legal representation at the original hearing;
- appealing for their immediate and unconditional release as prisoners of conscience;
- calling for the immediate withdrawal of the charges of spreading false news against Moussa Ahmed Idriss and for an immediate re-trial, conforming to international standards of fairness, of Moussa Ahmed Idriss and another 19 individuals convicted after an unfair trial on 6 October of violently resisting arrest.
