Fear of torture/fear for safety

MALDIVES

Mohamed Nasheed, MP for Male'

Member of parliament Mohamed Nasheed was arrested on 8 October, and reportedly taken to Male' police station. He has been held incommunicado since 14 October, and Amnesty International is concerned for his safety, as detainees are frequently tortured while held incommunicado in police custody. He has reportedly not been charged or allowed to see a lawyer.

Mohamed Nasheed is the member of parliament for Male'. It is not clear why he was arrested, but Amnesty International fears that his arrest may have been politically motivated. Amnesty International wrote to the government seeking information about the reasons for his arrest on 12 October, but has received no response to date.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Mohamed Nasheed was a signatory to a petition handed over to the Minister of Home Affairs on 28 February 2001, requesting permission to set up a political party, the Maldivian Democratic Party. So far, such permission has not been granted. At least one other parliamentarian was detained for several days in July 2001, reportedly because of his leading role in the formation of this party.

Mohamed Nasheed has been arrested several times before for political reasons. Amnesty International adopted him as a prisoner of conscience in April 1996 after he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment on charges in connection with his activities as a freelance journalist.
